Morse Recital Tonight

Mrs. Mary D. Bacon Morse, elocutionist and impersonator, of Boston, Mass., will give a series of readings in Assembly Hall this evening, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society. Mrs. Morse may be expected to say something of interest to Secret Society people, and to give some of her recitations in dialect. The Coalbrook News says: "She is a most delightful entertainer. The local paper of Hastings printed the statement that Mrs. Morse far surpasses anyone who has ever appeared here in her line of work." The Latrobe Bulletin has among other things: "Mrs. Morse having more than pleased even the most critical with her readings and impersonations." From Connellsville comes the report, "Mrs. Morse is an elocutionist of rare ability and will always have a welcome in Connellsville." And the Somerset Democrat writes: "Aux Italiens," by Owen Meredith, given by Mrs. Morse, was simply beautiful. Too much cannot be said of Mrs. Morse as an entertainer. She has proven herself master of her noble work."

Mrs. Morse will be assisted this evening by Miss Charlotte A. Jones, Baltimore, Soprano; Miss Margaret Shuck, Bedford, Soprano; Mr. Raymond Samuel, Bedford, Violin; Mr. Frederick Samuel, Bedford, Baritone; Miss Cora McGirr, Bedford, Accompanist. This Recital deserves, and should receive, the hearty support of Bedford. The admission is twenty-five cents, with reserved seats at thirty-five cents.

Mrs. Samuel Taylor

Mrs. Charlotte, wife of Samuel Taylor, died on Thursday, October 5, of cancer, aged 54 years. She is survived by her husband and one daughter. The funeral services were held Friday afternoon in the Stone Church, near Fishertown. Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery. Mrs. Taylor had been a patient sufferer for years. The cancer first started in the form of a wart in the corner of the left eye. It enlarged, destroyed the eye and part of her nose, and for the past two years she has been totally blind.

George A. Suder

George Albert Suder, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Suder, of New Buena Vista, died at his home Tuesday morning, October 3, after one week's illness. He was born August 3, 1909, and is survived by his parents and one brother, Walter.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. Gumbert at the home Wednesday afternoon, October 4. Interment was made in the cemetery near Schellsburg. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of all in their community in this, their said bereavement.

Mrs. Rachel Corl

Mrs. Rachel Corl, widow of Abram Corl, died at the home of Francis Beegle of Friend's Cove on Thursday, October 5, aged 83 years and 12 days. Three sons and one daughter survive: Albert, Edward, Sylvester of Petersburg and Mrs. Maggie Smith of Montana. Three brothers and 10 great-grandchildren are also living.

The funeral services were conducted Sunday, October 8, at the late home by Rev. J. C. Knable and by Rev. J. W. Zehring in the Trinity Reformed Church, Osterburg. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Mrs. Corl was well known and loved by all who knew her. She was a consistent member of the Reformed Church for many years.

MENTIONED IN BRIEF

Town Talk and Neighborhood Notes Tersely Told

MANY ITEMS OF INTEREST

Gleaned From Various Sources—Little Points Picked Up By Vigilant Reporters.

There were 462 more entries at the county fair this year than in 1910.

The display of electric fixtures and appliances now shown at Mrs. Ella Gilchrist's store is a credit to the Electric Light Company.

Mrs. Morse is reported to have a recitation at the Assembly Hall Recital tonight which will possess a special charm for temperate and temperance people.

The Irish and the negro dialect pieces are always sure of welcome. The program of Mrs. Morse at Assembly Hall tonight recognizes this fact.

Attorney Frank Fletcher, who has been in bad health for a long time, was taken to the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, for treatment this week.

Elmer E. Corle of Bedford is the W. S. P. C. A. officer for this district and will be glad to investigate all complaints made of cruelty to animals.

Even the Masons should not escape Mrs. Morse in her Recital tonight. Some of the secrets of the craft may escape in that capital recitation of the gifted Boston elocutionist.

We welcome to our desk the Johnstown Leader which made its appearance this week. If it keeps up the standard of the first number it will be appreciated by its subscribers.

A partial list of the premiums granted at the recent fair is published in this issue. It will be continued next week when announcement will be made of the time when Treasurer Corle will be ready to pay the same.

Founders' Day recently celebrated at the Methodist Episcopal Deaconess Home, Harrisburg, was quite a success. Miss Sara Ellen Mardorf of this place is superintendent of the Home.

Dr. C. R. Grissinger attended the ninth annual meeting of the Central Pennsylvania Dental Society held in Altoona on Tuesday. He presented an interesting dental paper on "Synopsis of the Dietary and its Systemic Effect Upon Conditions Arising in the Oral Cavity."

There was a large congregation present at the Communion service in the Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning. One adult was baptized at this time. The old Colonial pulpit, which is to be restored as closely as possible to its original form, and to be made very beautiful, was greatly admired.

Lucky Workers!

To paraphrase the patriotic expression of "My Country, right or wrong, but still my country"—let it be "My party, right or wrong, but still my party."—Bedford Inquirer, October 6, 1911.

If the voices of Republican orators become husky while stumping the county "for party, right or wrong," they may be supplied with "White Pine Cough Syrup" which is for them only, and if they take cold from wet feet while "disseminating information" for "party, right or wrong," there is, it is averred, "balsam" in stock in quantities sufficient for all afflicted Republicans at the Alms House.

Postoffice May Be Discontinued

The postoffice at Rainsburg may be discontinued unless some one wants it pretty soon. The present postmaster, C. P. James, resigned some time ago and the Civil Service Commission advertised that an examination would be conducted by their local representative in Bedford for the position on September 28, but no one made application. So the time has been extended to October 28 and notice given that unless at least one application is received, it will be necessary for the commission to report the facts to the Postoffice Department with a recommendation that they discontinue the office.

Here is a chance for some one to make about $400 a year extra and why some storekeeper over there does not want it is queer.

Recruits Wanted!

If you subscribe to the following you may join the ranks of the "local annex," no difference what manner of man you are; no questions asked. If you have sucked eggs, stolen horses, or even made counterfeit money it will not bar you from occupying any post to be given, but you must be "for party, right or wrong!"

Bedford M. E. Church

Rally Day next Sabbath, the 15th, the Sunday School and congregation will unite in general exercises. All are cordially invited. At 7:30 p. m. the minister will preach.

W. V. Ganoe, Minister.

Trinity Lutheran Church

Sunday, October 15: Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; service at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Communion service will be postponed until October 22.

H. E. Wicand, Pastor.

Bedford Presbyterian Church

"The Low Hill With a Long Shadow" is the subject of the Sunday evening sermon, at 7:30, at the Presbyterian Church. This is an interpretation of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. The singing of "The Holy City" at this service will illustrate the same idea. In the morning, at 11, the topic will be, "The Man With a Staff."

Edward F. Reimer, Pastor.

Trinity Lutheran Church

Sunday, October 15: Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; service at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Communion service will be postponed until October 22.

COMPANY L WINS TROPHY

Which is Now on Display at W. B. Mock's Cigar Store.

Rifle practice for this season has closed. Fifty-seven men of Company L have qualified, making a very creditable average. Private Leo Shaffer, high man 118, and Corporal Durrah W. Griffin, next 115, will represent the Company next year at the regimental match held at Harrisburg.

The beautiful bronze trophy, which is now on display in the large window of W. B. Mock's cigar store, was won by Sergeant George B. Hemming and Corporal Durrah W. Griffin on the skirmish shot at the regimental match this year. If Company L wishes to

THE LONG TAIL JAPS.
Have you ever seen a rooster with a thirty foot tail?
If so you visited Japan, the land of rooster wizards, for the emperor will not permit birds with such prodigious appendages to be exported.
These Long Tail Japs (Phoenix Yokohamas) are bred and fed to produce tremendous tails. While the tails are growing they are put up in papers, like Sally's frizzes, or a reel is fastened to rooster's back, and around this the growing tail is wound.
Mr. Rooster is often kept on a high perch, his magnificent tail hanging down like a great mass of silken ribbons, and when he is let down to strut a small boy attends, holding up his trailing tail in the latest King George coronation style.

Imagine an oriental lawn, backed with cherry blossoms, magnolias, palms and palaces, and over this lovely velvety green this cock of pure white a-strut with his harem!
His silvery plumage glistening in the sun, his proud figure, from high head to tail spread, all curves; his movements all ease, his wonderful snowy tail so poised that all is grace and beauty as it undulates and breaks in waves and circles on the green.
The hens are more modest than the male, as all females should be, but are beautiful in their graceful outlines and sprightliness.
The breed has game instincts, and in its varieties is bred in single and pea combs, in white, fawn, pyle, black, black red, mottled and duck wing.

The hens are fair layers of tinted or sooty colored eggs. The chicks are rather tender at time of shooting their tails, and for table the fowl is delicious.
It requires eight years for males to grow a perfect tail, the fowl molting only once in three years, the Jap experts pulling out a few feathers at a time, so that molt is retarded, and the fowl is thus always renewing its beautiful plumage.

DON'TS.
Don't let market ducks swim. If they swim they get thin.
Don't feed pigeons just any way. System here or failure dear.
Don't expect lousy chicks to thrive. No lice, grow nice, big price.
Don't sell geese before Thanksgiving. Big price then, many yen.
Don't feed turks corn till they "shoot the red." Corn fed, quick dead.
Don't make capons exercise for feed. The more sloth the finer growth.
Don't let young turkeys in the barnyards. Can't mature on manure.
Don't let the cornerb'd door open. Hens with fat bustles can't eggs hustle.
Don't let that word "modern" lead you to turn without experiment to methods that are entirely new when you are having success with methods tried and true.

WAR DECLARED

Catarrh Germs Must Be Conquered or Health Will Be Destroyed.

If you have catarrh you must vanquish an army of persistent, destructive microbes before you can get rid of it.
You might as well choose your weapons, declare war and annihilate this army of catarrh germs right now. Stomach dosing won't kill them; neither will sprays or douches.
HYOMEI, a pleasant, antiseptic, germ destroying air breathed over the entire membrane will put catarrh germs out of business in short order.
HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) is guaranteed by F. W. Jordan to end catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, coughs, colds and croup, or money back. If you own a little HYOMEI hard rubber pocket inhaler you can get a separate bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents. If you haven't an inhaler buy a complete outfit that only costs $1.00.

HANG UP ME OLE STRAW HAT.
Marlar, here's the ole straw hat.
Please hang it up, me dear,
On that same nail where it hez hung
Nigh on to twenty year.

It's gittin' frosty, an' me hair
Hain't very thick on top,
An' that air hat's got nary crown,
An' the rim goes kerplop.

Them sparrows built a nest in it
An' wasps an' them bee lice
An' that air crown was all chewed up
By them air pesky mice.

Now twenty year is middlin' long
To wear around one hat
The wimmin folks change hats each month.
You're well aware o' that.

I've carried eggs up from the barn
In that air handy hat.
An', though she's got some egg smear on,
I do not keer fur that.

I've brought you berries from the field
In that good ole straw hat,
An' on't 'twas full o' kittens
Laid by ole mammy cat.

I've filled 'er up with cabbage leaves
To keep me hot head cool
An' often dipped a drink with it
Down at the meadow pool.

That ole hat's a most busted,
But to me she looks good
I wouldn't swap 'er fur the plug
Of any New York dude.

So hang 'er up on that high nail
An' keep 'er safe, me dear,
When robin comes to nest ag'in
I'll wear that hat next year.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. I am told that there is enough mineral (ash) in corn and wheat to supply all that a hen needs for her system and eggs. Is this true? A. Wheat contains but one-eighth per cent mineral, corn one-fifth, while an egg is 9 per cent ash. The mineral matter must thus be supplied by feeding oyster shell, limestone grit or crushed bone, or a hen will run short on eggs without speaking of her system's demands.
Q. A writer states that skim milk contains as great a per cent of protein as green cut bone, beef scrap or blood meal. Please state the protein content of the four? A. Skim milk, 2.0; g. c. bone, 13.1; b. scrap, 66.2; b. meal, 52. Your writer likely referred to skim milk reduced to cottage cheese when it is said to equal sirloin steak in protein.
Q. Is milk albumen equal to meat products for hens? A. Milk albumen is too costly for poultry and does not bring the results you get from meat foods.
Q. Where may I buy little turkeys a day old? A. You will have to order your day-old turkeys from England, as we know of no place in this country where they are hatched and shipped.
Q. When is an egg more susceptible to the entrance of bacteria—when it is wet or dry? A. When dry the tough membrane (that lines the eggshell is impervious to bacteria. If water enters by way of the shell pores and soaks this membrane entrance to the egg contents is easy.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Beef scraps of poor quality affect hen health and the flavor and keeping quality of the egg. Juicy, fresh cut bone costs less than half the price and is far better.

No human can contrive a plan to equal the old turkey hen rearing poults. God made her for that, so don't try in the face of Providence and get left on your Christmas dinner.

In the first year's operation of the rat law in Denmark bounties were paid on the bodies of 1,000,000 rats. China's rats are all killed and eaten "free gratis for nothing."

Our English kizens are struck on blue. They are breeding Blue Andalusians, Blue Orpingtons, Blue Leghorns and Blue Wyandottes. As for us, give us the Red, White and Blue.

If England must import eggs and poultry she surely has rats to burn. On Lord Gifford's estate in a rat campaign with ferrets, traps and poisons 37,000 rats were killed on 2,000 acres.

"Don't put all your eggs into one basket" rather refers to the fellow who puts most of his money into pens and just a little into hens. The chief consideration in building should be for hen health.

There are many "star boarders" in farm and town flocks that eat, eat, eat, but stick the "missus" for their board. On the same plan you couldn't make a summer hotel pay if you served hash and prunes every day. To the cook pot with the drones!

A gentleman of Plymouth, Pa., recently received word that he had been left $3,000 by a Texas girl with whom he corresponded when he found her address on an egg. He had never seen the lady and was much surprised to hear of his nice nest egg.

Feathers to the value of $900,000 were exported by Russia last year. In enlightened America we throw $1,000,000 in feathers on the dump annually and import great quantities from the countries across the seas, where the people don't practice frenzied feather finance.

Roup is one of the diseases that take a quick hold on turkey and chickens that are inbred. This disease often takes hold of an inbred flock and cleans up the coops or so afflicts the flock that all chances for winter egg profits are smashed to smithereens.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

By M. QUAD

The village of Exter numbered 1,200 inhabitants and was accounted an interesting place. That was why George Bailey, who had just graduated as a dentist, opened parlors there. It could be figured as straight as a string that 1,200 men, women and children had teeth enough to keep three dentists on the hump.

It was only natural that Mr. Bailey should observe the teeth of the people he had come among. He met perhaps a dozen in the 1,200 whose teeth were in good order. There was no doubt that the graduate had come to the right spot and struck a soft thing.

A week went by and Mr. Bailey hadn't had a customer. Then a second week passed. Then he went about to inquire what was the matter. He ran up against a grocer, who told him.

"Why, I supposed you knew all about it," said the grocer. "Some six years ago a dentist set up here, and in pulling a tooth for old Mrs. Joyce he pulled her neck out about two feet long, and she died next day. Too much neck, you see. The dentist had to fly for his life. Since that date none of us dare patronize a dentist."

At the end of the third week Mr. Bailey offered to fix the teeth of a minister for nothing. The minister said he was much obliged, but he hadn't yet fulfilled his mission on earth.

Did Mr. Bailey set his office afire and then go out and hang himself? Not at all. He knew just what to do in such a case, and he did it. He went up to Chicago and walked out a bit until he found Professor Donaldson. The professor was the champion painless tooth puller of America. By day he was in his office; when evening came he dressed up as a harlequin and drove about the streets and pulled teeth without charge. Mr. Bailey and the professor had a long and chummy talk together, and an agreement was reached. Three days after the talk the dentist was back at Exter. A day later the professor followed. He had a wagon and music. He had flags and banners and prancing horses. He had the whole town on the street, and he delivered a lecture on bad teeth.

Bad teeth were responsible for headaches, flatulency, dimness of vision, loss of memory, biliousness, liver complaint and a score of other things. Bad teeth filled graveyards. Bad teeth prevented happy marriages. Bad teeth caused half the crimes committed. Bad teeth caused 10,000 divorces per year. It was because of the bad teeth of the soldiers that Germany conquered France. It was only a lecture on bad teeth and the results this evening. Tomorrow evening the professor would show the good people of Exter what a true philanthropist he was. There would be something doing, and it shouldn't cost any citizen a cent.

When the next evening came the professor made a few general remarks and then offered to pull teeth free of charge. It would be painless. If any one felt the slightest twinge of pain that person was to be presented with a five dollar gold piece. Aye, the professor would do better than that. He would furnish sets of false teeth at the low price of $2 a set. Single teeth would be only 20 cents each. No more headaches in Exter and the death rate reduced 50 per cent.

Three evenings it took the professor to reach the last tooth. No hurt, and nobody out a cent. There were a few people who sympathized with Mr. Bailey and called to tell him so, but he had folded his tent and gone off fishing, and it was a long fortnight before he returned. What of the people who had got something for nothing? They had had from one to six teeth extracted. Many of them were "on their gums" alone. Scores were hissing as they talked. Other scores uttered a hiss as they started out to talk. For three weeks they went about patting each other on the back and calling Professor Donaldson the friend of humanity. Then it suddenly occurred to some one to ask when he was going to return and make good. He had been indefinite about the date. They rushed to the office of Dentist Bailey, but he could tell them nothing beyond the fact that he had the best kind of luck fishing. Letters were written to the professor, but they remained unanswered. A committee was sent to Chicago, 100 miles away, but it failed to find its man.

Then you must see what happened. Dentist Bailey was ready for the rush that came. He had secured an assistant in anticipation. His stairs groaned under the weight of callers. They wanted to be fitted from two front teeth to all their mouths would hold. There was work for a year ahead, and there was money in the work. It was weeks and weeks before one man in Exter would take another man's word, but bad to have everything in writing. When a man hisses and lisps and mumbles as he talks how are you going to know what he is driving at? There was some attempt to connect Mr. Bailey with Professor Donaldson, but it fell flat. You can't figure out things with your empty mouth. It was six months before the churches had their usual congregations again and somewhat longer than that before lawn parties and "lassez-candy" pulls were indulged in again, but there came a time when the stranger who rode through Exter afterward bragged not of the clean streets and happy faces he saw, but of the white, even teeth that met his gaze on every hand.

Would You Pay Me $14.25 for a High-Grade Sewing Machine

Usually Sold at $45.00?

This is a fraction of its real worth, but perhaps all you need pay

It's an INTRODUCTION plan--an ADVERTISING plan--a plan to get every woman in Bedford County acquainted with THE BEST SEWING MACHINE IN THE COUNTRY. I am certain that when women KNOW it they will want no other.

I will sell it under my own name at lower prices than strictly high grade Sewing Machines ever sold for before. Do you grasp what an opportunity I am placing before you.

My plan is to get a number of these machines into each borough and township in Bedford County. With this idea in view--to have the machine advertising themselves in all localities--I make this offer for one month only.

LIFETIME GUARANTEE

Provides that if any of the working parts prove defective in material or workmanship it will be made good free of charge, no matter when required. The time is unlimited.

This Sewing Machine is simple in construction, perfect in action and everlasting.

ALL WEARING POINTS are of best steel, hardened and ground to bearings and interchangeable.

In the manufacture neither skill, money nor labor has been spared in perfecting what I believe to be the BEST and MOST PERFECT machine ever offered, and it is made in the factory of one of the OLDEST, LARGEST and MOST RESPONSIBLE sewing machine MANUFACTURERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE SEWING QUALITIES of the machine are perfect. It will sew from one thickness of muslin to six thicknesses of heavy full cloth, without breaking the thread.

The needle is SELF-SETTING, and can be fastened in position without the use of a screw driver. The machine is SELF-THREADING at every point except the eye of the needle.

There are other features--many of them--that you ought to know about. Visit the store and let us point them out.

THE BRITISH CABINET.

How Its Secret Documents Are Protected and Printed.

Each member of the cabinet is supplied with a key which fits the lock of a certain dispatch box retained by the prime minister. At any particular crisis, when important papers reach Downing street, the premier, after perusing them, places them in the dispatch box and hands the box to a special messenger, who takes it round to each member of the cabinet in succession. Each member opens it with his key and relocks it after he has read the documents it contains. In this way the papers are prevented from falling into the hands of strangers or members of parliament who are not in the cabinet.

Now and again it is found necessary to print copies of a "secret" which comes up for discussion at a meeting of the cabinet. The document is cut up into many small pieces and distributed among a goodly number of compositors in the government printing works, each of whom sets up his little piece, and the little piece may represent only a dozen lines of type. When all the fragments are in type a highly trusted official collects both the copy and the type and puts the latter together. The printing of the document is then done in secret under the eyes of this official, and the men who work the printing machine are forbidden to handle any of the paper after it is printed upon--National Magazine.

Reverse Methods in India.

Lady Wilson, the wife of an eminent Anglo-Indian official and long resident in India, in her book, "Letters From India," says: "It amuses me to notice the way the Indians reverse the order in which we do things. For instance, at home men take off their hats when they come into a house; Indians keep on their turbans, but take off their shoes. We beckon with the palms of our hands turned inward; they beckon with them turned out. My ayah lays my slippers in a row with the toes pointing toward me. The cook begins to read his Hindustani book of recipes from the last page backward and writes his accounts from right to left. When the native carpenter uses native screws he screws them in from right to left and saws inward, which makes one nervous."

NAMES AND FACES.

Douglas Married the Man He Wanted to Know Again.

"Stephen A. Douglas had the most remarkable memory for faces of any man in public life," declares a correspondent. "Upon the occasion of a visit to Washington on election day in 1880 the late Colonel John W. Forney was discussing the election of Garfield over Hancock with Colonel Harmon of Detroit. Colonel Harmon had been mayor of Detroit and prominent in national politics. Harmon and Forney got to talking about earlier politics, and Harmon related the story of a meeting with Douglas in New York. Douglas had been nominated in Baltimore by one faction of the Democratic party. Breckinridge was chosen by the other faction in Charleston. When he heard of his nomination Douglas was in New York. He entered the Astor House, then the headquarters for all politicians and the principal hotel in New York, and immediately was surrounded by his political admirers. Among them was Colonel Harmon. The latter, according to the story he told me, put forth his hand and congratulated Douglas on his nomination.

"Thank you, Colonel Harmon," replied Douglas.

"Harmon was amazed that Douglas should have remembered his name, for he had met the 'little giant' but once, fifteen years before, and then for but a brief period. After a time he returned and asked Douglas how he was able to call him by name.

"My dear colonel," said Douglas, "whenever I meet a man I want to know again I put a mark on him and I never forget."--Washington Post.

They Bumped

A true happening which has been made the subject of a cartoon occurred at a fashionable golf club near London. A young man interested in golf solely for the sake of the social atmosphere one day decided to play a round. So he sauntered leisurely down to the caddy house, where he met a certain peppery lord. Not knowing the gentleman and barely looking at him, the somewhat foppish youth asked, "Are you the caddy master here?" Without an instant's hesitation Lord replied, "No, I am not, but I happen to know that he is not in need of any caddies this afternoon." It was some time before either recovered.--Boston Transcript.

Tongue Could Tell

"Last night, George, you told me you loved me more than tongue could tell, and, oh, George, that wasn't true!"

"Why, darling, what do you mean?"

"I mean that it wasn't more than my little brother's tongue could tell. He heard it all!"

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Bedford People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Mrs. William Adams, Clarence Street, Hyndman, Pa., says: "I willingly confirm all I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I publicly recommended them two years ago. They were used in my family in a case of kidney trouble and backache and effected a permanent cure. Since then this remedy has been taken off and on and it has always acted promptly and satisfactorily."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name--Doan's--and take no other.

IT COVERS ALL

The local Republican campaign motto, "My party, right or wrong, but still my party," is so broad as to admit all classes to the fold, and as all members, no difference about their records, are supposed to have an equal chance for office, there is no necessity for any withdrawals from the Republican ticket because of any "record" of the past. When we asked for "at least one" last week we presumed that at least a semblance of honesty and integrity would be maintained, but the Inquirer has "thrown down the bars."

THE LOCAL CONTEST

The chances for success of the fusion movement at the coming election have been materially brightened by the adoption by the opposition of a motto as a campaign slogan that must be repulsive to every true American, no difference what his political relations may have been in the past.

The official vote at the primaries, published in this issue, differs in places from the unofficial table of last week. The official count gives, in a couple cases, the Democratic nomination to one candidate, the Keystone to another and the Prohibition to a third, but it was generally understood and agreed to by all candidates that withdrawals should be made in favor of the one securing a plurality on the three tickets. This remains to be done to make the tickets identical, and it will be done, we believe, before another issue of The Gazette reaches its readers. It is the only honorable course.

When the withdrawals are made will begin a vigorous campaign against the party whose motto is "party right or wrong."

WHERE WILL IT STOP?

Until the day of Andrew Johnson has no candidate for President ever made political speeches during the campaign.

Until the day of Andrew Johnson no President ever lugged the prestige of his great office around the country in an effort to vindicate his Administration.

Until the day of Theodore Roosevelt no President who was a candidate for re-election ever assumed personal charge of his own campaign and stained his fingers with the sordid details of practical politics.

Mr. Taft, however, seems to be preparing new surprises and is turn-

AN AWFUL EXAMPLE.

Stephen Decatur, an American naval hero, was the son of an American Commodore of French descent. He obtained a Midshipman's warrant at the age of 19, saw some service against the French and was commissioned a Lieutenant the following year. In the war with Tripoli he gained distinction; his achievement of boarding and burning the captured Philadelphia in the harbor of Tripoli and escaping under heavy fire, Lord Nelson declared "the most daring act of the age," and for it he was commissioned Captain. In 1810 he was appointed Commodore. In the second war with England he captured the Macedonia but was obliged to surrender two years later, after a conflict that cost him one-fourth of his crew. In 1815 he chastised the Algerines for their piracy and humiliated the Bey, by compelling him to declare the American flag inviolate, and obtained indemnities for the violation of treaty stipulations. He was appointed a naval Commissioner in 1816 and was killed in a duel by Commodore James Barron in 1820. The same year in which he was appointed a naval Commissioner, surrounded by banquet influences at Norfolk, he responded to a toast in which he said:

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations, may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

These were the words of one made of the materials that constitute heroes, uttered when he was flushed by his naval successes, admired by his countrymen for his daring, but uttered about the banquet board and under the conditions that usually exist on such occasions.

History lauds him as a warrior but records his banquet statement without comment. Nowhere in all the broad field of American literature is there a single spot where the rash and un-American statement is nourished by a writer or a journal of any repute.

Within five years of a century after the utterance was made,—and we are supposed to be progressing along the line of civilization,—the Bedford Inquirer, the mouthpiece of Lieutenant Governor John M. Reynolds, and the recognized organ of the "Local Annex" of the Penrose machine in Pennsylvania, selects a paraphrase of the duelist's banquet utterance as a slogan to be placed upon the banner under which the Republican candidates for county offices are marching toward the November election, stating in its editorial of October 6, which was its opening gun of the present campaign:

"To paraphrase the patriotic expression of 'My Country, right or wrong, but still my country'—let it be 'MY PARTY, RIGHT OR WRONG, BUT STILL MY PARTY.'"

It is not strange that Decatur's extravagant, un-American and unpatriotic declaration lay dormant on dust-covered book shelves for almost five score years before it found lodgment in the heart of a newspaper so steeped in depravity as to be willing, not only to give it publicity but to narrow its application to "party," thus setting "party" against country and against right; disregarding the declaration of the founders of our Government, who held and declared "that all men are created equal; that all are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness;" and setting at naught the supreme law of the land, which was established "to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty" to themselves and to us.

The inaccuracy in quotation may be passed over, but the advocacy of a doctrine so dastardly is a matter to be condemned. Decatur wished that his country might be right; the Inquirer doesn't even do this in its anarchistic reference to its party—the party that for its benefit used the legislative machinery of the state to crush all opposition. A doctrine that sets a faction, a party, a "gang" against the government is not only treacherous but treasonable.

The daring departure on the Inquirer's part may be justified by it on the ground that it is the most appropriate slogan it could find for the present campaign, considering the public records of some of the candidates who have disregarded the votes and taxpayers as a whole to fill their own pockets and the coffers of the machine organs; but even this is not justification, for though men and women who think will consider the source, the influence of such an expression upon the minds of children may be most detrimental.

Surely a slogan that inculcates the doctrine that "might makes right," emblazoned upon a present-day political banner will not be carried to victory. Decatur chastised the Algerines for piracy and for this he is remembered, but his banquet declaration has long lain dormant. Not a single paper from the earliest Colonial records of those who came here in search of freedom and equal rights to the most recent utterings—save only that of the Bedford Inquirer—advocates such a doctrine; nowhere else can be found the selection of a slogan fit only for the field of the black flag of heathen pirates! Of what manner of men does the Inquirer think the electorate of Bedford County is made up?

Have the voters of our historic county reached such a stage of depravity that they will follow such a banner and support a ticket that accepts such a slogan? Must men crush their manhood and condemn the foundation principles of the American nation,—the home of the down trodden and the oppressed,—to occupy the editorial chair of Republican papers in Bedford County? Will the people of this county support a ticket screaming such a slogan and a paper that teaches their children to crush them in their old age by inculcating in their minds the "might makes right" doctrine? Shall our proud national structure be razed to the ground and that government "of the people, for the people and by the people" * * * perish from the earth? Nay, we believe that anarchy will finally be crushed, that political parties will cease to use slogans appropriate only for desperadoes and pirates, and the American nation will continue "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

ing the White House into a national Republican headquarters

Already the United States mails are carrying heavy manila envelopes addressed to lawyers and bearing this inscription:

THE WHITE HOUSE.

Official Business.

Penalty for private use, $200.

Within these envelopes are copies of Mr Taft's special message vetoing the joint resolution admitting the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona. This is the message in which Mr. Taft made his admirable protest against the recall of Judges, a protest for which he deserves the highest praise; but it is an extraordinary thing that that message should now be circulated from the White House under a Presidential frank, virtually as a campaign document. It is more than extraordinary in view of the fact that Presidential messages have heretofore been circulated by members of Congress, not by the President himself. It is still more than extraordinary that Mr. Taft's political speeches should be sent to the press associations under the White House frank

Reports are in circulation that the Secretary to the President is to be made Chairman of the Republican National Committee, which would be equivalent to making Mr. Taft himself Chairman of the National Committee. The President's Western tour is neither more nor less than a chase for delegates and votes. If the campaign documents are also to be sent out from the White House under the Presidential frank, where is the degradation of the Presidential office to stop? Is the President of the United States to be regarded in the future merely as the most powerful and resourceful managing politician in the country?—New York World.

FORMER BEDFORD GIRL

Figures in Captivating Romance at State Capital.

Few who saw the simple announcement in Harrisburg papers a day or two ago of the marriage at Carlisle of Miss Haderman and Jack Compton know that between the lines was a romance rivaling the tales of the most imaginative novelist of the day.

Just a year ago in August, historic Zion Lutheran Church of this city was crowded with guests for the brilliant wedding of Miss Lethean Corrine Haderman, the beautiful daughter of Rufus C. Haderman of Bedford, to Samuel Elmer Lester, a theatrical manager of New York, and no one had heard of a separation, Mr. and Mrs. Lester having spent this summer at Paxtang with her father, who is connected with the State Railroad Commission.

The youthful bride, well known on the stage as Christine Lemoyne, had been leading lady with several excellent theatrical companies, and was always accompanied on tours by her mother.

In the fall of 1906, while playing in "An Aristocratic Tramp," produced by Kilroy & Nicol, Miss Lemoyne was taken ill with typhoid fever at Elgin, Ill., and was in the hospital there for two months. Samuel Elmer Lester, manager of the company, was most considerate of Miss Lemoyne and quite won the heart of her mother. After a period of rest the little actress signed with a George B. Samuel Company, playing the leading woman's part in "Deserted," and started in January, 1907, touring the Western States to California. Miss Lemoyne met Jack Compton, a young electrician in a town where they had a week's stand and a strong attachment developed, culminating in an engagement.

Mr. Haderman did not approve of an early marriage for his daughter, and when seeking information of the man who aspired to her hand he ran across a lawyer who happened to be an enemy of Mr. Compton's and who had nothing good to say about him; afterward they knew he was trying to get square for a fancied wrong. The father forbade a union he thought would mean unhappiness for his child and insisted that she have no further communication with Mr. Compton. Dutifully she obeyed him, although it almost broke her heart, and her mother dying early in 1909, she remained at home.

The shock of her mother's death and the breaking of her engagement seemed to undermine the girl's health, and her father, though wanting her at home, thought perhaps returning to the stage would awaken her interest in life. So in the fall of 1909 Miss Lemoyne took the part of "Hilda" in a Schubert Bros. production of "The Wolf," later canceling this engagement for the part of "Christine" in "The Lily," produced by David Belasco. Coming again in close personal contact with Lester, who professed a devoted attachment for her, she finally consented to marry him, and her father's inquiries regarding him being most satisfactory, the wedding took place in August, 1910.

The couple took an extended wedding trip and their lives went happily on. About two months ago, while visiting at Paxtang Mrs. Lester was all alone one day, when a constable appeared with a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Lester on a charge of bigamy, brought by his wife, whom he had married in 1907 and from whom he had not been divorced, although a suit was pending in Chicago. Almost distracted, with her husband and father both out of the city, the young woman consulted an attorney, who advised her that her own marriage was illegal. Searching, she found among his effects letters from a Chicago lawyer written after her own marriage, acknowledging the receipt of money, on account of his divorce proceedings, as well as letters from his legal wife.

When Mr. Lester returned an irate father confronted him with the story of his previous marriage, which he acknowledged, saying that as he was practically divorced from his wife he thought his marriage with Miss Lemoyne legal. He begged her not to do anything hastily, to wait till his divorce was granted and then be remarried. But she was firm in her desire never to see him again.

Just then, Jack Compton appeared, having been sent to Harrisburg on some special electrical work. He sought out his former sweetheart, heard the sad story of her life, and, both feeling that another separation was impossible, went to Carlisle and were married by the Rev. E. H. Kellogg, the bride giving her stage name of Christine Lemoyne. The task of breaking the news to father was a hard one. Mr. Haderman, who was having the old marriage license annulled in the Bedford County courts, was stunned to hear of the new wedding, but as his only thought was for his daughter's happiness, he gave the young folks his blessing. He desired them to return to Carlisle and correct the license issued there in the assumed name—although the marriage was perfectly legal as she had appeared in person to get it—and be re-married. This was done and the happy young people are now at the Haderman home, Paxtang, where they will reside for the present.—Harrisburg Telegraph, September 30.

HECKERMAN LETTER

"Happy Bill" Spends a Busy Week in the City of Brotherly Love.

A few days ago I picked up a small pamphlet and on the outside it simply said, ask Mr. Foster. The little book is so full of good things that I shall, for the good of all of your readers, refer to and simply say, ask Mr. Foster. He invites you to ask questions. It costs you nothing but the time and postage. One who contemplates taking a journey, wants to know many things regarding the small details of the trip. Many of these are often difficult to obtain. Mr. Foster is able and willing, and will tell you just what you want to know. He will write out all in detail, giving you exact information as to the service of steamers, railways, how and where connections are made, which are desirable stopping places and the prices of all hotels. He will supply you with maps, schedules and other literature, the very kind you want before you start. More than that, he will give you personal letters which are very beneficial, and if you are timid, he will engage hotel accommodations for you. If you are a stranger here in Philadelphia, he will take time and tell you about the city, what to go to see and how to see it. He will tell you the true conditions of the roads, and the locations of good garages. He will not only give you advice concerning travel anywhere, but will tell you about the best schools and where they are located. Much more, if he don't know, he is very frank and will tell you so. There will be no charge of any sort; no fees are asked or even accepted, hence, your readers will find it to their advantage and a matter of economy to ask Mr. Foster.

If your readers are not well posted as to this, the Quaker City, let them take a dollar ride in an auto. Get a car at Keith's, Chestnut Street theatre. Only the most important parts of the city are visited and the trips run on schedule time. Every minute is both interesting and instructive. You not only see the many important and very interesting points, but you are told of many interesting facts about them. You get your money's worth, at least, I did. You are saved much time and trouble in hunting up the various places of interest. The company sends a well informed guide on each trip. The guide is well posted and tells you all, never stutters, but has his speech at his tongue's end. All in all, these trips provide you with a quick yet thorough means of gaining knowledge of the city and its surroundings. One by one these places are pointed out and a brief biographical sketch is related by the guide.

The City of Brotherly Love is replete with incidents and land marks that are associated with Colonial times. The ride through Fairmont Park is another trip well worth the time spent in taking.

I have been so busy the past week that I scarcely have had time to steal an hour in which to buy baby clothes. Say, why is it that infants' clothes cost so much more than the adults in proportion to the size of the wearer?

By the bye, I hear that Harry Hartley of your town is paying his addresses to a certain Philadelphia lady.

I recently heard of the love affair of a once black haired lass of your town. She has always been able to hoe her own row, and began when a mere child by going to John Wright's store in Bedford and getting six dollars' worth of goods and having these charged to the man for whom she then worked, all because he did not pay her promptly for her services. Well, as time rolled on, she left the parental home and having captured the heart of a most excellent man, married him. Overwork for Uncle Sam undermined his health, when he sickened and died. With the widow's weeds on her, she was stunning in appearance and soon captivated the owner of a big lively stable. In this case, he was fooled for he thought her a widow of great wealth, but when she refused to

Buffalo Mills

October 10—A very pleasant surprise party was given at the home of F. A. Miller last Saturday night in honor of his daughter Ostella. To say it was a surprise is putting it mildly as the guests all gathered outside and while Ostella was playing the piano, all marched into the room. A very nice time was had by all. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cakes and candy were served at a suitable hour. The following were present: Misses Hetty McCoy, Verda and Ruth Long, Pearl Hillegass, Rosa Pennell, Zuelia, Ostella and Adelia Miller and Alma Horn; Messrs. QUICK WON

Though There Was a Beginning to the Courtship Some Time Before

By F. A. MITCHEL
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The summer was drawing to a close. The leaves had not yet taken on their autumn colors, but that haze one so often sees during the close of the hot months hung about the hills and the valleys.

A gentleman whose apparel bore a distinctive foreign cut alighted from a train at a railway station and, leaving his belongings, set out on a road leading to an attractive country place. On reaching the gateway, flanked by stone pillars, he noticed on one of them a sign, "No Trespassing."

He proceeded on the walk toward the house and, reaching a terrace where through trees he could see an attractive vista, sat down on the grass, took out a cigarette and began to smoke. He was aroused by a feminine voice behind him.

"Did you not see the notice that no trespassing is allowed on these grounds?"

The gentleman arose and uncovered with ceremonious politeness.

"I did," he said.

"Then I do not understand why you should avail yourself of the place for lounging."

"To tell the truth, I have a strong prejudice against such notices."

"Why so?"

"For several reasons. Firstly, I question the natural right of any one to appropriate to his or her exclusive use any portion of the planet. But this is based on philosophic principles too deep to enter upon just now. Secondly, there is, I think, selfishness in refusing others the enjoyment of attractive and restful grounds."

"Perhaps if you owned a place like this and saw persons camping on it and injuring things you would feel differently."

"That would not alter the case, as I have stated it. I am capable of putting myself in your place and can appreciate your feeling."

"Oh, we don't own the place; we merely rent it."

"What kind of a person is the owner?"

"I don't know, never having seen him. He is a noble, good man."

"Is he handsome?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"A woman's idea of a man is often influenced by such matters."

A trifle of indignation flashed in her eye. "I assure you," she said, "that it is a very much more valuable trait than physical beauty that has prejudiced me in favor of Mr. Chenoweth."

"Chenoweth! That's an uncommon name. I am in very close touch with a man of that name."

"Our Mr. Chenoweth is abroad."

"That's where I met my Mr. Chenoweth."

"He's been traveling in Switzerland. We had a letter from him dated Geneva yesterday. He was to sail immediately for America."

"I made an ascent of Mont Blanc with my Mr. Chenoweth not a month ago."

"What's your friend's first name?"

"Bert."

"Albert? Our landlord is Albert B."

"That's it—Albert Borland Chenoweth."

"Isn't that strange that you should know him so well? Now, are you surprised that I have spoken so highly of him?"

"I certainly am surprised. I never saw anything in him to warrant such an encomium."

"You don't? You are not very loyal to your friend."

"I didn't say he was any especial friend of mine."

"You said you are in very close touch with him."

"Did I? That doesn't necessarily mean that I admire him. But I am open to conviction. If you will give me your reasons for your own admiration you may succeed in planting it in me."

"Perhaps we had better go up to the house, since you know our landlord so well. I shall be pleased to offer you some refreshment."

"Thanks very much. I will go with you with pleasure."

When they were comfortably seated in the drawing room the lady said:

"Now I will tell you why I so admire Mr. Chenoweth. We and Mr. Chenoweth have a mutual friend, Mr. Chard. Father is a retired clergyman, and such, though they may be of the kingdom of heaven, are not usually burdened with worldly goods. Mr. Chenoweth had an opportunity to rent this place for a good sum. Mr. Chard, thinking it would be vacant, tried to get it for father for a nominal rental. When Mr. Chard heard about it he told Mr. Chard that father might have it. What do you think of that?"

She gave a triumphant glance at her companion.

"Oh, Chenoweth, I suppose, feels that every well to do person should respect the cloth, and there's no better way of accomplishing that than by doing one's duty to the cloth. Chenoweth is a church member, and it is no more than right that he should give his share to the church's support. In letting your father have created the biggest sensation ever caused by a novel appearing in magazine form. To this day there is an incredible demand for the story. Its author, Amélie Rives, now the Princess Troubetskoy, has written a new novel which bids fair to overtop the reputation of its famous predecessor. It is called "Hidden House" and appears in the October Lippincott's.

The lady looked puzzled. The stranger arose from his seat, walked to a window and looked out. The gardener, who had been standing at the front door, came to the drawing room, and making his way to the stranger, said enthusiastically:

"How do you do, Mr. Chenoweth? I'm mighty glad to see you back to the old place, sir."

"David," said the stranger, offering the gardener his hand. "You've given me away. I took a fancy to remain in, for awhile, and you've spoiled it all."

"I don't know what that is, sir. When did you get back?"

During this bit of welcome landlord and tenant were, to say the least, an interesting sight. Chenoweth, who had drifted into the deception and thought that he could give the cause of his liberality without detection, was quite dumfounded at this exposure. He had forgotten that the gardener always went with the place. As for Miss Cathorne, she turned alternately red and white and didn't seem to know whether she was herself or some one else. When Chenoweth got rid of the gardener the two stood at either end of the room, both studying the figures of the rug.

Finally the man stole a side glance at the woman. Then he stole another and another. There was no evidence in her appearance that she would reopen the conversation. He must do so himself. But what was he to say? He had never intended such a denouement.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson III.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 15, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ezra i, 1-11; ii, 64-70—Memory Verses, i, 3, 4—Golden Text, Mic. vii, 18—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As we turn to the story of the return from Babylon some words come to mind such as these: "Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed," "Whatsoever the Lord pleased that did He," "He worketh all things after the counsel of His own will" (Jer. ii, 29; Ps. cxxxv, 6; Eph. i, 11).

Compare the previous chapter, verses 21, 22, and the words of the Lord Jesus in Luke xxiv, 44, "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the psalms concerning Me." All the predictions concerning the captivity of Israel and Judah were fulfilled, and now under Ezra and Nehemiah the predictions concerning the return from captivity are to be fulfilled, God controlling the hearts of kings to bring it about. Just as surely shall all predictions concerning a still future restoration be fulfilled, and they shall then be plucked up no more nor see evil any more. Neither shall they weep any more (Amos ix, 15; Zeph. iii, 15; Isa. xxx, 19). The Lord shall be their everlasting light, and the days of their mourning shall be ended (Isa. lx, 20).

He is quite able to accomplish all that He has purposed, and it is our privilege to walk with Him and see Him do it. If we are abiding in Him He may use us, but He will work out His eternal purpose, and He cannot fail nor be discouraged (Eph. iii, 11; Isa. xlii, 4). He may use a Cyrus or Darius, an Ezra or a Nehemiah, but He is ever saying, "I will work, and who shall hinder it?" (Isa. xliii, 13).

Cyrus is one of the seven men mentioned by name before they were born. Isaiah speaks of him as God's chosen one over 150 years before he came on earth (Isa. xlii, 28; xiv, 17), just as Josiah was mentioned by name and some things that he would do about 300 years before he was born (I Kings xiii, 2; II Kings xxiii, 15-17). How inspiring are the words, "I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like Me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all My pleasure." "Known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world" (Isa. xli, 9-11; Acts xv, 18).

It was the Lord who stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, the king, to send Ezra and the people back to Jerusalem to build the house of the Lord God of Israel, and it was He who stirred up the hearts of all who went back (verses 1, 5). Cyrus acknowledged that it was the Lord God of heaven who had made him ruler over the kingdoms of this world and had charged him to build the house at Jerusalem (verses 2-4), and he called for volunteers to go up and do this, commanding those who did not go to help in every way those who went.

It is all important to notice this, for the church seems to have forgotten it and is giving itself up to schemes of every kind to draw money from people who are not interested and who have no part in the Lord's work, not being children of God. Notice in Ex. xxxv, 5-29; xxxvi, 7, that the material for the tabernacle had to be willingly offered, and they brought so abundantly that Moses had to ask them to stop bringing, as more than enough had come in for all the work.

Concerning the temple, David said, "I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God, because I have set my affection to the house of my God." He also said, "Who am I, and what is my people that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort, for all things come of Thee, and of Thine own have we given Thee" (I Chron. xxix, 2, 8-14). A willing mind is everything, and God asks no one to give or to do that which He does not give them the ability to give or do (II Cor. viii, 12; I Pet. iv, 11). The love of Christ is the one constraining power.

Think of the 5,400 vessels of gold and silver which had been seventy years in the hands of the enemy, now about to be restored to Jerusalem (verses 7-11). Notice also the nearly 50,000 people (verses 64-65), and consider the restoration that is to be from all lands, both before and after the coming of the Messiah in glory, that Israel may blossom and bud and fill the face of the earth with fruit (Ezek. xxxvi, 24, 25; Isa. lx, 9; xxvii, 6; Ps. lxxvii, 1-7).

In chapter ii, 59-62, we see the necessity of being on the books and can understand better the force of Luke x, 20; Rev. xx, 15. If not registered on the Lamb's book of life there is no kingdom for us. But "whosoever will" may take the water of life freely, and "him that cometh" shall not be cast out, so that all who have heard may be registered if willing. Vessels suggest people, for we are spoken of as earthen vessels, and vessels meet for the Master's use (II Cor. iv, 7; II Tim. ii, 21), and we must be as content to be earthen as to be silver or gold, to be second sort as well as first (chapter i, 10, 11). Then in verse 9 we read of nine and twenty knives, and cutting things abound on all sides, all for our good, and to manifest in these mortal bodies the life of Jesus Christ (Rom. viii, 28, 29).

Midocene, October 8.—Pastor Russell made some startling statements in connection with his discourse on the Blood of Atonement. He took for his text the words, "For the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an Atonement for your souls." (Leviticus xvii, 11.) He said:

All the trend of religious scholarship in recent years is away from the Bible and in line with the Evolution theory. The Bible sets forth that the first man was created perfect, in the image and likeness of his Creator, and that when on trial for life or death everlasting he was disobedient, and came under the sentence of death; and that all trouble, all sin and sorrow, pain and death, for the past six thousand years, is the penalty, the result, of that fall from obedience and harmony with God. The Bible teaches the necessity for an Atonement for sin, and this lesson was shown in the typical sacrifices of bullocks and goats, which Israelites for centuries commemorated, especially upon their Atonement Day, at the beginning of each year.

The Bible and Evolution Opposed

Evolution claims that man started as a cousin to the monkey, and that instead of falling into sin and death, an evolution process has been bringing him up, up, up to his present high elevation. This theory, having no place for sin or a fall, finds, of course, no place or need for a recovery, through a Redeemer, a Savior. The two theories are absolutely opposed. Whoever believes the Darwinian theory cannot, logically, be a Christian. Whoever is a Christian cannot, logically, hold to the Darwin theory. And yet the pulpits of Christendom are well stocked with Higher Critics and Evolutionists, and all of our colleges and theological seminaries are graduating others, all antagonistic to the Bible and its presentations. For years the fight has been conducted on the quiet. The unbelievers hold the best and most influential pulpits and professorships in Christendom, and insidiously, craftily, undermine the faith of those who are paying them their salaries.

It is time that the battle between truth and error should come out into the open, because the majority of those who are being misled do not realize the situation until their faith is entirely undermined—until their minds are so entrenched in error that the verities of God's Word, including the words of Jesus and the Apostles, have passed with them into the list of absurdities, amongst these, the stories of Jonah and the whale, Noah and the flood, etc., endorsed by Jesus and the Apostles.

Higher Criticism Means Higher Infidelity

Today every college, every theological seminary, throughout the whole civilized world, is teaching what is commonly known as Higher Criticism of the Bible—though the proper name for it would be higher infidelity—infidelity amongst the high ones of all Christendom. These Higher Critics are doing the same work exactly that Thomas Paine and Robert Ingersoll did, only that they are carrying on their work on a higher plane—appealing not to the gross and the vile, but to the refined, intelligent and truth seeking. As a result their influence is a thousand fold more injurious. Those to whom Paine and Ingersoll appealed were very rarely Christians at all; hence they destroyed very little faith—they merely made the unbelief more rank and foul.

But these Higher Critic infidels of the "evil day" are making use of all the vast machinery of Christendom in all denominations, especially through theological seminaries, to undermine and overthrow the faith of all who have named the name of Christ, great and small, rich and poor, cultured and ignorant. It is being done systematically, too, craftily, deceitfully, in a manner that the masses of the people would scarcely credit. It is safe to say that fully four out of five who graduate from theological seminaries of all denominations are Higher Critic infidels, who are instructed that their main business is to promote morality amongst the people, especially to build up Churchianity, particularly their own denomination, and to gradually, stealthily, craftily wear the people from the faith of the Bible to their higher critical dogmas. And they are succeeding most wonderfully. A "pestilence" is the only figure of speech which really fits to this pernicious influence. "Out of Thine Own Mouth, Will I said the Lord, and in harmony with this we find that in the Lord's providence these Higher Critics are gradually more and more telling on themselves. But the nominal Christian is quite obtuse, and many of the true Christians, as the Apostle explains, are merely "babes in Christ," unable to use the strong meat of the Word, and capable only of enjoying or using the "milk of the Word," and incapable of using its strong meat. Hence the open declarations of these wolves in sheep's clothing, who masquerade as sheep, are not taken seriously. If the sheep are startled by the words, they are soothed again by the thought that this is our kind minister, polished in manner and well educated, and he surely would not lead us astray, he surely would not deceive us. If he had ceased to believe the Bible and become an infidel he surely would have left the pulpit. Poor innocents!

Blood Atoned for Sin

Our text refers to a blood-atonement for sin. The Law Covenant required the death of a bullock and a goat, but the repetition of these sacrifices every year indicated that no cancellation was effected thereby—merely a typical covering of sin for a year. The Law required an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; a man's life for a man's life, which implies that a perfect man must of necessity die in order to be the Redeemer of Adam and the race which shared his condemnation. The bullock of the sin-offering, therefore, was merely a type of a better sacrifice. The true sacrifice was provided in the death of the Man Christ Jesus. He was a man and yet not a sinful man, because, although born of a woman, His life was from above. Had He received His life from an earthly father, He would have been a blemished, imperfect, sinful man, and as such could not have paid the ransom-price for another. For this cause: One was chosen to be the Redeemer who was "holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners." And all this because of His miraculous conception.

As in the type the blood of the bullock was used to make a typical atonement for a year, so in the antitype the blood of Jesus is efficacious to make atonement for the sins of the whole world. In the type an earthly priest offered the blood, in an earthly tabernacle; in the antitype, He who became the Sin-Offering, begotten of the Holy Spirit, at the time of His consecration, was therefore recognized as the great Antitypical High Priest. After His resurrection He ascended on high, "to appear in the presence of God for us"—for the Church—first; and when the Church shall be completed, He will appear for the world. He will seal the New Covenant for Israel, applicable to all the families of the earth, through Israel. Then, as the great Mediator of that New Covenant (Jeremiah xxxi, 31), He will, for a thousand years, reign as King of earth, the Antitype of Melchisedec—a Priest upon His throne—a Royal Priest, possessed of the necessary power to put down sin and to uplift humanity and perform the function of instructing and blessing mankind.

To Regain Paradise Lost

The Paradise lost when Adam sinned was a miniature one. It is to be restored and to be world-wide in extent. "God will make His earthly footstool glorious." He has promised to make His footstool glorious—"He formed it not in vain, He formed it to be inhabited."—Isaiah lx, 13; lxxvi, 1; xlv, 18.

As the earthly Eden it will be inhabited by its master, man; the restored earth would be naught without its master restored. And this is the Divine provision, that as by man came death, sin, sorrow, pain, trouble, by a man also shall come the resurrection of the dead, the uplifting of Adam's race, mentally, morally, physically, to human perfection, happiness and everlasting life. Earth's blessings will be for all except two classes: (1) Those who love sin and hate righteousness, after having been brought to a full knowledge of both good and evil, will have no further Divine favor, but will die the Second Death. (2) The others who will not get human perfection and earth's blessings will be a spiritual class, a saintly class whom God is now selecting from among mankind to be His co-laborers with Christ in the uplifting and restitution of humanity.

Unquestionably, the Almighty could have arranged a plan for dealing with humanity differently—He could have put a different penalty up-

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat-band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Bedford only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

on Father Adam. The present arrangement was made so as to display (1) Divine Justice, (2) Divine Love, (3) Divine Power, (4) Divine Wisdom. Man's fall and degradation under the death sentence witnessed to men and to angels the downward tendency of sin and Divine Justice in man's condemnation. Divine Love is manifested in the work of redemption. Divine Power will be manifested, during the reign of Messiah, in the uplifting of humanity from sin and death—the resurrection of the dead. Divine Wisdom will finally be seen by all when the great work of reconciliation and regeneration shall have been effected.

The Life Is In the Blood

We have always known that in a very important sense the life of every creature is in its blood, as our text declares. But we are continually finding that the Bible contains such a superhuman wisdom that many of its statements grow in importance as our knowledge increases. Our text is no exception to this rule. The latest findings of science are to the effect that life and nature are more particularly represented in the blood than in any other manner.

If the theory of Evolution seemed supported by Mr. Darwin's careful inter-breeding of his pigeons, we are not to forget the difficulty he encountered in maintaining his fancy breeds. The constant tendency appeared to be to turn back to the original stock. We are now informed that this is a rule, a law of nature, which applies both to animal and vegetable life. We are informed that all such breedings return to their original species in the third or fourth generation. It is even pointed out now that diseases of the blood proceed no further than the third or fourth generation, and this most fortunately, otherwise the physical health of humanity might be much more impaired than it is.

Is not this a direct corroboration of that Bible statement which some of us once thought so ungracious—God's declaration that He would "visit" the sins of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generations? (Exodus xx, 5) It now appears that, instead of being a mark of Divine disfavor, it is a mark of Divine mercy that hereditary taint in the blood is limited to the third or fourth generation.

A celebrated physician and scientist, Dr. William Hanna Thomson, promulgating this theory, said:

"Professor George H. F. Nuttall, of the University of Cambridge, took up the subject and has so extended its application that a single drop of blood from any animal now suffices, not only to show by its own peculiar chemical reaction what animal it comes from, but also how nearly related an animal is by his blood to other animals. It begins, therefore, to look as if the whole classification of zoology might have to be re-arranged according to these blood tests. Thus a drop of blood from a walrus shows no relation to a drop of whale's blood, or the blood of any other cetacean, such as seals or porpoises, which, like the walrus, are mammals that have taken to the sea."

We may be sure that those who hold fast to the teachings of the Bible will come out on the right side of the argument in the long run. The endeavor of worldly-wise men to get away from God's book has led many of them to extremes of thought and of statement, which some day will be fully rectified to their shame, said Pastor Russell. The Bible foretells this, saying, "The wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid." Isaiah xxix, 14.) St. Paul refers to science, falsely so-called, which will ultimately be proven entirely wrong.

Complete Sin-Atonement

For nearly six thousand years the reign of sin and death has prevailed. It is nearly two thousand years since the Redeemer came to give His life as man's redemption price, yet still the reign of sin and death continues. It is not because the blood of Christ was insufficient to satisfy the claims of Justice for the sins of the world, but because, before the merit of the blood of Christ could be given to Adam and his race, it must have a previous use. That use has been in progress for the past eighteen centuries, during which it has been the basis of the Church's justification by faith.

There is a difference between the Church's faith-justification of this Age, and the world's actual justification, to be accomplished in the next Age. The world will actually get restitution to human life and its privileges, earthly dominion, etc. All that Adam had and lost, all that Jesus redeemed, will be given to Adam and his race to have and to hold as theirs forever.

But, meantime, the merit of Christ's blood or sacrifice is used in the interest of "the Church of the First-born." The earthly, natural rights will not be given to the Church, for she is to have "some better thing"—a heavenly inheritance with her Lord and a participation in His spirit nature. The Redeemer's merit is imputed to the Church, to cover the imperfection and weakness of each one called and drawn of the Father to membership in the Bride of Christ. The difference between a gift and an imputation is manifest—an imputation signifies merely a loan, an assistance. Thus the merit of Christ, imputed to those who would become His Elect Church, covers their blemishes so that they may present their bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God; as footstep followers of Jesus—as participants with Him in His spirit nature and in an attainment of the heavenly nature.

Thus it will be seen that since the entire world lost life and all its privileges through the disobedience of Adam, all of these may be fully recovered from their inherited disaster, through the Redeemer, because His life was given—figuratively, His blood was shed—"the Just for the unjust," as the great Sin-Atonement for the world.

Atonement For the Soul

In our text the word soul is a synonym for person or being. Father Adam was a human soul, a human being, so also his children. He alone, however, had a standing before Justice. He alone was perfect, he alone was on trial, and through his disobedience and fall his children are involved. Jesus was, originally, a spirit being, personality or soul, the Logos. He became a partaker of flesh and blood; He was not, previously, a human soul, hence it was that it was necessary for Him to lay aside the glory of His higher nature or order of being and become a human soul, "that He, by the grace of God, might taste death for every man." (Hebrews ii, 9.) He gave His blood, His life, a Ransom for all, and thus we see the fulfillment of our text, the exhibition of Divine favor and love with the resultant blessing to the world, during Messiah's reign, and the blessing and exaltation of the Church, which must precede.

They Used to Eat Crows.
Our forefathers despised some dishes which we regard as delicacies. In the thirteenth century, for instance, although partridges abounded in England, they were eaten only by peasants and were never seen in the houses of the nobles. Hares, too, were despised by the upper classes, and even among the poor a strong prejudice existed against them. On the other hand, gourmets in the middle ages ate herons, cranes, crows, storks, cormorants, bitterns and other birds which would revolt the least dainty feeder of today.—London Chronicle.

Turn About.
"Every husband ought to make his bride a regular allowance from the start," said a guest at a wedding reception in New York.
"This is but just," he continued "because from the start every bride finds that she must constantly make allowances for her husband."

The Philadelphia Record
 What other educative force that any man can bring into his home can compare with the daily newspaper? In making choice of newspapers the local newspaper should always be preferred for local news. In the wider general field The Philadelphia Record is a general favorite; because it is clean; because it is accurate; because it is impartial; because it is in no sense yellow. These are the peculiarities and the superiorities which have made it the most widely circulated of Pennsylvania daily morning newspapers.
